

Going Further Resources

The Sacred Search by Gary Thomas // Helps those who hope to marry replace the “soul mate” myth with a biblical perspective on dating

Get Married: What Women Can Do to Help It Happen by Candice Watters // Explains why marriage is an honorable pursuit and shows how women can live as if they are planning to marry

A Guy's/Girl's Guide to Marrying Well

Boundless.org has put together short, practical guides for singles to help them become proactive about whether, how and whom to marry. (Available as a free download at boundless.org/guys or boundless.org/girls)

Boundless.org // Webzine for young adults. Its most popular articles are those about finding a godly spouse and dating according to biblical principles.

Going Further Prestonwood Support

Prestonwood Single Adult Ministries // Prestonwood offers a variety of LifeGroup Bible Studies and other opportunities targeting non-married adults. Consult the LifeGroup Locator Guide available at campus information booths to find a LifeGroup that fits your schedule and family life stage. For details regarding the Prestonwood Singles Ministries, go to prestonwood.org/youngsingles or prestonwood.org/singles.

For additional resources, scan code:

 Prestonwood
Baptist Church

Dr. Jack Graham, Senior Pastor
972-820-5000 | prestonwood.org/homelife

Hope to Marry
Proactively
Pursuing
Marriage

HomeLife

Building your family's faith at home

Guides

Proactively Pursuing Marriage

➤ Most of us are called to marriage. It's the natural design for fulfilling our drive for companionship and sexuality. If you are not called to celibacy and service (1 Corinthians 7) then a significant priority for this season of your life is preparing for and moving toward a biblical marriage. An intentional path to finding a mate recognizes that God is at work. We also have a responsibility to be faithful in our part of the process.

Step 1 Seek Direction within Christian Community

We live in a day of hyper individualism where people feel very little sense of obligation to others. God calls us, however, to vibrant community within our families and within the body of Christ. That community is the source for much of our growth as Christians, and it's one of the best means for meeting a potential spouse and receiving guidance and support toward marriage. Marriage experts still consider matches made by friends, family and churches to be among the best.

Step 2 Move beyond Recreational Relationships

One of the clearest messages for singles in the Bible is the call to sexual purity (1 Corinthians 6:13-18, Ephesians 5:3 and Colossians 3:5). That is proving to be a difficult challenge in a day when only a quarter of Christians are virgins when they marry. Sexual purity, however, is the primary means for intentionally moving toward marriage in a recreational relationship culture. Couples who stay sexually pure honor God and avoid much of the confusion that plagues many of today's relationships.

Step 3 Seek the Right Mate

A study by the National Marriage Project found that 94 percent of young adults believe the person they marry should be their soul mate first and foremost. That pursuit leaves many looking in vain for the perfect person who is specially designed to complete them. The Bible and marriage research tell us that the more important "soul" mate to seek out is someone who shares your spiritual commitment. Paul writes in his letter to the Corinthians that a potential spouse "must belong to the Lord" (1 Corinthians 7:39).

Singles should seek someone with whom they are able to serve God better together than apart. Christians seeking a mate who shares his or her biblical values know that "all have fallen short," so there's no sense in holding out for a perfect person. Further, they know that instead of seeking someone to complete them, they are called to lay down their life for another. That makes for a much more realistic path to finding a good fit for marriage.

Step 4 Be Proactive

Living in purity and Christian community makes it easier to find a mate who shares your spiritual values, but there's more you can do as a steward of your future marriage (Matthew 25:14-27). Titus 2 strongly encourages young men and women to learn from older men and women. In addition to Christian discipleship, you also can ask mentors for candid feedback about how you can improve in a variety of areas to be more prepared for marriage. Additionally, there's nothing wrong with asking mentors to keep you in mind as they become aware of other singles seeking a godly spouse. Some of your best opportunities to be proactive will grow out of faithful prayer. It's important to note that men have a distinct responsibility in proactively finding a mate. Genesis 2:24 says that a man will leave his parents and cleave to his wife. Proverbs 18:22 says, "He who finds a wife, finds what is good and receives favor from the Lord." Notice it doesn't say "he who stumbles upon a wife" as if it is a happenstance occurrence. God calls men to do their part in seeking out women of character and showing leadership in pursuing a woman for marriage. Specifically, men should be willing to take the risk of rejection which requires a measure of faith and leadership.