A Prayer for Hutch

Heavenly Father, creator of everything, we come before You admittedly with broken hearts and broken spirits at the loss of Hutch. Jesus, we believe in Your healing power; we claim Your promises of hope and of a perfect peace that Scripture says is found only in You, and yet we grieve the loss of our Hutchy.

Lord, thank You for the gift of Hutch; thank You for his hugs and his headlocks; thank You for his giggles and his gorgeous sparkling eyes. Thank You for his tenacity and feisty spirit that kept us all on our toes. Thank You for entrusting us with such an incredible boy.

Father God, we thank You that because of Jesus, we can say with certainty that we will see Hutch again one day, healed and whole, fully restored in Heaven.

Lord, we thank You that You allowed us the privilege of loving Hutch. You created him with such joy – there is no one else like Hutch. Hutch could walk into a room and change the entire atmosphere with his smile, and we know that was a gift from You, God.

As we say goodbye for now, help us in the days and weeks ahead as we grieve and process what has happened. Your Word says that You are near the brokenhearted; and so Jesus, draw near and comfort us. Help us in the days ahead when we see reminders of him in his shoes, or his clothes, or with marker caps and lids, tears will come – and that is OK, but Spirit, help us remember his smile and his exuberant joy. Lord, be with Hutch's family as they grieve; Holy Spirit, remind them of good memories and of better days. Walk with them, and when necessary, carry them in Your loving arms. We do not understand this, but we trust in our mighty God.

Because of You, Jesus, we can say confidently that Hutch no longer needs his walker, or to be pushed around in his stroller, because he is walking and running with You. May Your perfect peace be found in abundance. We ask all this in Jesus' name, amen.
